Poor MTA planning

Dear editor,

As I look out my window overlooking Westchester Avenue and the L.R.T. 6 subway line, I see the MTA parking a out-of-service train in the middle track north of the Bahre Avenue train station. This train should not be there! Not when they are forecasting very heavy snow soon later.

Heaven forbid the MTA finds itself in a situation around Parkchester where it needs to reroute passenger trains on the middle track and this train is parked on the track.

Joseph Wall

Rededication helped by many

Dear editor,

I would like to thank you and everyone from the Bronx Times for attending our breakfast on February 27, that commemorated the 30th anniversary of police officer Edward R. Byrne’s demise at our school, MS 101 which was named in honor of his April 27, 1989.

We, the PTA and MS 101 would like to thank the following people who helped make this possible by donating their time and energy to our fallen hero. John Marano, who went out of his way to solicit items from local merchants to help make this even more memorable; Billy Tshidjua, Crostown Diner, for its abundant and delicious spread of hot food and pastries; Jay D’Angelo from Empire Bagels; and Raymond and Robert Carotenuto from Crown Monuments, who without hesitation, cleaned, polished and made a base for the plaque/monument/tombstone on the front lawn of the school located in front of the pine tree which was planted when the school was renamed in ’89.

Maria Leonard

Diversity lost in medicine cuts

Dear editor,

I’m an African-American Nigerian immigrant who was raised in the Bronx, and am now a current student at the Associated Medical Schools of New York’s post-baccalaureate program at the University at Buffalo. This state-funded diversity in medicine pipeline program has opened doors for me.

This program has helped me by allowing me the time, opportunity, and necessary funding to pursue my goal of becoming a doctor. The information provided in the courses I am taking will give me the advantage I need to be successful in medical school. Because of this program, I will be attending SUNY Upstate Medical University in the fall, and I am closer to achieving my goal of becoming a physician.

I just turned 28, and as a non-traditional applicant to medical school, there are a number of challenges and difficulties that come with that, especially when combined with the challenges associated with being a minority male. This program has helped me meet these challenges by providing necessary support and the tools I need to be successful.

AMSNY’s programs, supported by the state legislature, have helped hundreds of students like myself go on to become doctors who have done great things in their communities. These programs are important because they help increase diversity in medicine by increasing the number of underrepresented students in medical school.

But despite the persistent lack of diversity in medicine, programs like this one which address the issue are once again being scaled back, facing a 20% budget cut. This means one in five future students from underrepresented backgrounds won’t get the opportunity to become doctors and improve NY’s healthcare.

Moje Omoruan

Subscribe Today!

1 Year Subscription $15.00 • 2 Year Subscription $25.00

Bronx Times Reporter
3602 East Tremont Avenue, Bronx, New York 10465

New York’s post-baccalaureate program at the University at Buffalo. This state-funded diversity in medicine pipeline program has opened doors for me. The information provided in the courses I am taking will give me the advantage I need to be successful in medical school. Because of this program, I will be attending SUNY Upstate Medical University in the fall, and I am closer to achieving my goal of becoming a physician.